

Indiana implemented a telephone no call law last year allowing residents to get on a "no-call" list. We did this and the results are great. The number of solicitation telephone calls has dropped dramatically. Obviously this has significantly reduced this type of annoyance. The best thing the state has done for us in years.

I understand you are considering a nationwide rule. Also it might weaken the current Indian law. Please do implement a nationwide rule, but do so in a manner that does not weaken our current situation.

Thanks in advance, Bill Lanke
